"Elizabeth R. Simons, PhD, school coach, Berkeley, California

Elena Aguilar is an instructional and leadership coach in the Oakland Unified School District. Elena writes about education for Edutopia and for Education Week's Teacher Magazine, and is also a member of the Teacher Leaders Network.

A beautiful book. I loved her advice on coaching meetings. She walks you step by step through the most effective ways to coach any teacher.

I like that the real world examples were included and that the ideas are applicable to coaching positions in school.

It is a book for the soul of those coaching in learning organizations. Inspiring and clear. It's language is delightful. Many practical resources and great advice. It's been an exceptional resource in my masters, specifically in my coaching course.

This book focuses on the 'how' of coaching. EXTREMELY beneficial to anyone who wants to further their reach as an instructional coach also responsible for managing and implementing change

This book captures the WHY and HOW of coaching in ways that are immediately applicable to my work and also help me frame our coaching across the school district. I highly recommend this for individual coaches and leaders of instructional coaches.

This has become one of my go-to books for reflective coaching strategies. I've used it as a study group resource with school leaders, coaches, and central based instructional specialists. Definitely worth every penny as it is very practical and applicable.

If you have a new coach in your school or system..... this is a must read. Having served as a coach I had never put words to my thoughts. This is a great starting and restarting point every year. Coach principals who know it all to brand new teachers without a clue..... you will learn a great deal in reading and discussing this book.

SO life-changing! I just began my career as an academic coach and this book is helping me navigate it. Thank you so much for your wisdom and clarity, Elena.
