Gwen Tenney was born and raised in Wyoming to a ranching and rodeo family. She spent many days traveling with her grandfather who was a well-rounded cowboy from brand inspecting to horseshoeing to rodeo contestant and judge. She moved to Arizona and later married her husband, Lyman, who also comes from a ranching and roping family. Gwen is no stranger to the arena and the cowboy way of life. Because she is a teacher and has raised two daughters and a son who happens to have Down syndrome, Gwen knows that all people have great value and unlimited potential. Combining her love for the cowboy way of life and the understanding that all people can achieve greatness when given the right tools, her overreaching goal is to inspire people to become great both in the rodeo arena and the arena of life. Gwen has a certain kind of skillset to be able to genuinely challenge thinking in a supportive manner and help people remove the obstacles that keep them from going where they want to go. Through her role in Tenney Training, Gwen helps people to gain momentum on their path to achieving their goals by making dramatic improvements in their personal and competitive life.
